

Essay:

"Health"

"Health is Wealth.."

Health is one of the valuable assets of our life. It allows us to work, study, think clearly, and take care of our daily responsibilities. When a person is healthy, they feel strong, active and confident. Without good health, it becomes difficult to enjoy life or perform even simple tasks. This shows that health is a true form of wealth and is essential for a stable and meaningful life.

"The preservation of health is easier than the cure of disease."

~ B.J. Palmer

Good health affects every area of life. Physical health helps our body function well, while mental health keeps our mind calm and focused. When both are balanced, a person is able to make better decisions. Poor health can reduce our energy, affect our performance at school or work, make us feel stressed or unhappy.

Maintaining health requires simple and consistent habits. Eating a balanced diet, exercising regularly, sleeping on time, drinking enough water are basic steps that support good health. A healthy diet with fruits, vegetables, whole grains and clean water keeps the body strong. Avoiding junk food and sugary drinks reduces the risk of many illnesses. These small daily choices play a major role in protecting our health.

"To enjoy the glow of good health, you must exercise."

~Gene Tunney.

Regular physical activity is also important. Exercise improves the heart, strengthens muscles, and increases energy. It does not always require a gym, simple activities like walking, stretching or cycling can make a meaningful difference. Exercising also helps reduce stress, improves mood, and supports clear thinking. Even a short routine of 20 to 30 minutes each day can lead to better physical and mental well-being. In addition, regular movement helps maintain a healthy weight, improves blood circulation, and lowers the risk of long-term diseases such as diabetes and hypertension. Consistent exercise also enhances sleep quality.

Mental health deserves equal attention. A peaceful mind helps us think clearly and stay positive. Stress, anxiety, and negative thoughts can affect our overall health. To maintain mental well-being, we should take short breaks, practice deep breathing, spend time with supportive people, and engage in hobbies that make us feel relaxed. A healthy mind contributes to a healthy life.

"The greatest of follies is to sacrifice health for any other advantage."

~ Arthur Schopenhauer

Developing good habits is an important part of achieving strong health. Sleeping early, maintaining cleanliness, washing hands regularly, and avoiding harmful substances like tobacco all help prevent diseases. Keeping a clean environment and following hygiene practices reduce many health risks. When these habits become part of life, they create long-term protection for the body and mind.

"Quality of life depends on quality of habits."

~ Aristotle

Health is often described as everything because, without it, success and comfort lose their values. A person may have financial stability and achievements but poor health prevents them from enjoying these things. Good health gives us the freedom to work hard, explore new opportunities, and live with purpose. It helps us overcome challenges and stay committed to our goals.

"He who has health has hope, and he who has hope has everything."

~Thomas Carlyle

In conclusion, maintaining health requires regular care and responsible choices. By eating well, exercising, sleeping properly and protecting our mental peace, we can build a strong and healthy life. Health gives strength, stability, and happiness. When we value our health, we create the foundation for a successful <sup>and</sup> fulfilling future.

"The power of health is the foundation of human happiness."
